Mothers' Congress to Form Bachelors' Clubs Over State

A unique departure of the Mothers' Congress is a bachelors' club. Some critical persons may reason from above and say that in these times of suffrage agitation, it has devolved upon the bachelors of the country to look after the children. Assuming, merely assuming, such to be the case, have you ever observed that a distinguished person's judgment, of course eliminating the personal advice of the speaker, is apt to be much more sane than that of one hampered by sentiment whose point of view is more or less influenced, perhaps unconsciously by strong feeling?

It is in this position of look-oner that we find the bachelors. From his seclusion and broad view of life, as well as his penchant for philosophizing, he is able to give valuable advice and counsel in matters pertaining to the education of the rising generation. Also the memory of the countless younger brothers in need of proper discipline may have been the source of a train of thought that during subsequent years has formulated a process of education much more adequate to the needs of the present-day child than that of the past. The organization is making a careful study of the census reports to get the names of the bachelors in the state. An effort is being made to reach those of the business world and social

The Teaching of Sex Hygiene In the Home by the Parents

The subject of sex hygiene is now being discussed by superintendents, teachers, fathers and mothers. Each seems to have decided views on the subject.

"Why all this discussion?" There must be a need for some systematic instruction in this subject, and why are parents so slow to undertake it? The reason must be the responsibility upon parents, upon which so many are apprehensive. Let us face the question. Shall this knowledge regarding one of the most important functions of the body come to the child through the home or through chance companionship of the street? The child does not acquire reverently knowledge regarding their functions, but in relation of their lives, they are in danger of misunderstanding and in relation to sex down into consciousness, frequently responding to them in ways that are destructive. Every boy and girl has a claim to knowledge concerning personal hygiene and knowledge of the so-called mysteries of life. The life of the body is just as sacred as that of the soul when one is the natural complement of the other. Two years ago Dr. J. O. Campbell of the University of Georgia, gave a series of lectures on "Biology" under the auspices of the Atlanta Congress of Mothers. Since that time frequent lectures have been given on the subject of sex hygiene. These lectures are for mothers and those interested in the development of the child. The child should be taught that the mother (or parent) in the home, and the child should grow into the deeper phases of life before coming into contact with the children of the street.

Orthodox Jews Will Hold Interesting Services Today

Of great interest to orthodox Jews living in Atlanta, is the forthcoming "Acceptance of the Scroll of the Law" by the new Jewish orthodox congregation, the Beth Hamedina Hahadash, at the home of the rabbi, Rabbi J. M. Levine, which has been definitely fixed for Sunday, September 29, at the Red Men's Hall, 35 Central avenue.

At that time exercises attendant upon the real opening of the new congregation in this city will be carried out directly from Jerusalem for this occasion by D. Zaban, well known rabbi and scholar.

DR. RIDLEY TO SPEAK ON MAYOR AND POLICE

Rev. Caleb A. Ridley of the Central Baptist church announced for his subject for the next three Sunday nights: "Our Mayor and Police, or Law Enforcement." Who said the Devil was in our City? The Devil is in our Collar.

In speaking of local conditions, particularly, etc., Dr. Ridley said: "I am not an authority on politics. But for the information I glean from the papers, I would have no idea who your mayor are, but I do know, as a man's conduct, whether in office or out of office, whether or not they can be counted on in the struggle that is always going on between right and wrong. For years and years certain men now in office in Atlanta have been on the wrong side of most moral questions and associated with the

Faith in Atlanta Erected Building; Joel Hurt Had It

BY WINFIELD W. DUDLEY.

Faith in Atlanta has erected the Hurt building. Seventeen stories of steel and stone, divided into magnificent offices, will be opened October 1 as the business home of thousands whose southern business activities radiate from Atlanta.

Upon Joel Hurt's faith in Atlanta rose the Equitable building in 1892. It brought to Atlanta the representatives of huge business interests who previously had located in other cities because proper housing could not be found here. The Equitable building proved the necessity of modern offices and other buildings arose, until today travelers remark, "Atlanta has more skyscrapers than any other American city twice its size."

Office buildings in Atlanta are occupied rapidly, and business interests throughout the south, and in many instances throughout the world, are directed from them. In New York, while a group of men were being told about the rising Hurt building, one gentleman expressed the opinion that Atlanta could not support such a venture. He declared his belief that offices then vacant in Atlanta would be of such a number as to prove the city already overloaded with office space. Joel Hurt heard of the remark, telegraphed to Atlanta to have the offices here counted and the vacant ones enumerated. Out of three thousand offices counted only nine were found vacant, and they were not in modern buildings.

SPACE IS ALREADY RENTED.

One-third the space in the Hurt building has been leased before completion. It is estimated that by January 1 the building will be occupied fully, the tenants coming from outside Atlanta to carry on business in this territory. This is being recognized more and more as the best place from which to conduct southern business, and many business enterprises are planning to move, not only branch houses here, but their general headquarters as well.

Thus it is neither the purpose nor the necessity of the Hurt building to draw tenants from other buildings. Office buildings promote the growth of any city. Atlanta is the most striking exposition of that truth. Mr. Hurt states the proposition that "office buildings do more than any other agency, with the possible exception of the railroads, to advance commercial growth." I believe Mr. Hurt is right, even applying his statement to cities at large, but Atlanta, without question, establishes the force of his argument.

The Hurt building, which Mr. Hurt affectionately calls "a house," has been discussed and planned for ten years. The foundations were laid at the earliest moment that business conditions seemed to warrant the investment. The property on which the Hurt building rests is in the original center of the city. It is customary to regard the center of Atlanta as some distance west, since the trend of building has been in that direction. Years ago the city's growth to the eastward was restricted by a solid half-mile of private property and buildings without a public street. Half a mile east of where the Hurt building now stands was the west end of a narrow lane running out to the terminus of the Georgia railroad.

BUILDINGS REMOVED FOR STREET.

Mr. Hurt, with the far-seeing eye of a trained engineer, and the prophetic vision that even then saw the Atlanta of today, realized that entrance must be made for the railroad and an opportunity given for the unrestricted growth of the city eastward. He acquired the solid half-mile of property, on which were standing improvements worth $100,000. Edgewood avenue was cut through, and the city presented with the street. The lane to the railroad was widened, and a city street two miles long laid out.

Trails were laid and an electric car line constructed, over which the railroad's passengers were brought into the city until entrance for the trains themselves was found later on. Mr. Hurt operated this car line, and from the start it was successful, being the first successful electric line in the world with the exception of a half-mile of track in Lynn, Mass.

An interesting bit of street railway history is connected with Mr. Hurt's establishment of the new electric line, and since I am a native of Massachusetts, and the story deals with Boston transportation, I may be permitted to relate it here. To Joel Hurt, of Atlanta, Boston owes the early establishment of electric cars in Tremont street. Mr. Hurt was examining street railway properties in the north and east, when he discovered the president of one of the Boston lines ready to begin construction of a cable line in Tremont street. The contracts already had been let.

ACCEPTS ADVICE OF HURT.

Mr. Hurt gave the gentleman the benefit of the discoveries he had made in electric transportation, proved to him that 65 per cent of the power developed was required to start the cable, to say nothing of the waste necessary to keep it in motion, there being a minimum of power left to operate the cars. The efficiency of the old cable cars was shown to be slight compared to the new electric, and from Mr. Hurt's visit dated the decadence of cable in Boston. The movement spread until St. Louis, Chicago, New York and other cities eliminated the cable.

I like to tell this story to Atlanta people because it shows them that their city has been the leader of the world in one of the most powerful factors in the advancement of civilization throughout the world—that is the electric railway, both intracity and interurban. Perhaps you have begun today to regard the electric cars of Atlanta as a matter of course. But do you ever stop to think what the city would be without them? Already the outlying lines are developing the city far beyond the knowledge of the average citizen. Beautiful new homes are being erected on the pine-clad hillsides around Atlanta that were inaccessible before the cars cut through the red banks and let passengers off on the wind-swept clearings. Across these hills the healthiest air in Georgia blows.

The climate here was one of the primary causes of Mr. Hurt's original faith in Atlanta—the hill-tops, reaching more than a thousand feet into the ozone, seemed a guarantee that people born and reared among them would develop physical energy and mental capacity to build and conduct a cosmopolitan metropolis.

BUILDING A LOGICAL SEQUENCE.

The Hurt building, wind-braced and fireproof, so fireproof that, as a fireproof northern hotel advertises, "an ox could be roasted in any one room and the occupants of other rooms would never know a fire existed," is the logical culmination of Mr. Hurt's direct progression since he located in Atlanta thirty-eight years ago. Mr. Hurt's parents were native Georgians, but he was born in Alabama. He was 14 years old at the time of the civil war, but he had three brothers in the southern army, one of them being shot down in the battle of Atlanta at the age of 18.

The Hurt Building

In early life Mr. Hurt was a civil engineer. I refer to this fact because the training of an engineer promotes directness of thought and the elimination of needless things more thoroughly, perhaps, than that of any other profession. The efficient man of any profession or business, but especially the engineer, consciously or unconsciously, weaves into the fiber of his being so that it dominates his every thought and action the old geometrical theorem we learned in youth: "The shortest distance between two points is a straight line." Examine the works of any successful man and you will find that he has set a straight course and achieved his ends by following direct lines.

So, when Mr. Hurt stopped building railroads across the western deserts for other men to operate and decided to go into business for himself, he located in Atlanta.

SOUGHT CHANCES TO IMPROVE.

To wait for the growth he expected was not satisfactory to a man of his activity and Joel Hurt looked about for ways to promote the city's advancement. As I look back upon the work of Mr. Hurt in Atlanta, I would say that the standard to which he has adhered through these years has been this:

"Find something that Atlanta needed and undertake to have it supplied."

Few public improvements have been completed in Atlanta without at least some help from Mr. Hurt, and many of the most conspicuous have been the result of his pioneering. From one thing to another, each achievement larger than the one before, Mr. Hurt has moved forward with the perfect certainty of an engineer who runs a line for a railroad.

Few people of Atlanta know

$800,000 Expended To Make Building Modern and Safe

Eight hundred thousand dollars represents expenditures to date on the Hurt Building, which opens for occupancy October 1. Probably a million dollars more will be required for the second (the eastward) section of the structure to be erected later.

Safety and convenience have been the principles dominating the plans for this latest of homes for business houses. Convenience of the public is apparent at the first view of the building. Instead of a narrow flat-iron apex, with a mere slit of a window, shutting off instead of letting in air and sunshine, the apex of the Hurt Building presents to the western sun a broad front forty feet wide, two hundred and fifty feet high, with a row of full-sized windows across the entire front of each floor.

EVERY CONVENIENCE.

The entrance will be equipped with every convenience for tenants. It is roomy, light and airy. To the left of the entrance will be a battery of express elevators, and locals to the right. These cars will be for the use of passengers only, freight being delivered through a sidewalk elevator on Exchange Place to the basement. Here modern freight elevators will take the freight and carry it to the floors above. Tenants or their visitors always will be free from annoyance by freight shipments and receipts.

Rising to the floors above, one looks in vain for the customary dark corridors found in office buildings. Every room in the Hurt Building is flooded with light and air, both having a free sweep from outside windows into every office and hallway. Transoms over the doors and close-fitting, easily operated windows provide perfect ventilation, while the rooms are kept at an even temperature by a thermostatic heat regulation system that the occupants set to suit his own convenience.

Corridor floors are of Alabama marble and all office floors are of White-stone Marble Teraza, which is marble chips mixed in cement and laid on a concrete cinder base over tile. Floors of this character, there being absolutely no other kind in the building, are a guarantee that mice, vermin or germs cannot subsist. In wooden floors the cracks harbor dirt and from behind elevators emerge mice which have eaten through the floors and made their nests underneath. No mice can live in the Hurt Building, and all floors can be thoroughly sterilized each night by the force of janitors maintained.

PRACTICALLY NO FIRE DANGER.

The only fire danger in the Hurt Building would be in the case of some tenant's furniture burning and in the remote contingency the doors could be closed and the fire would burn out without disturbing the next office. All glass in the building is wired and above the eleventh floor all window and door sashes and frames are of steel. Elsewhere they are of asbestos which, before acceptance, has been subjected to fire from a plumber's torch under high pressure.

The elevators are encased in wired glass and no fire could be communicated from one floor to another, and the elevator shaft is so constructed that it could not act as a chimney and lead a fire should one start. Throughout every precaution has been taken to have a fire automatically starve itself for want of combustible material if anything in the structure should ever become ignited.

Not a wire will be in sight throughout the building. As the walls were wires were set and wall plugs are provided at levels below the tops of desks for lights, telephones and telegraph call boxes.

ALL CONVENIENCES AFFORDED.

A complete toilet is on each of the first three floors, and one on each having the most sanitary and modern equipment has been provided and the management announces that the barbers employed will be required to maintain the highest degree of efficiency.

Particular attention will be paid to young women who may be employed in the Hurt Building. Every convenience has been provided for their especial comfort. Retiring and rest rooms have been provided and equipped with elegant furniture and refined equipment. A trained maid required to give courteous and efficient service will be in attendance at all times.

The offices in the Hurt Building range in size from 235 square feet to an entire floor of 10,500 square feet.

COMFORT PROMOTES EFFICIENCY.

The reason for the Hurt Building's careful attention to comfort is explained by the Atlanta Realty company, owners of the building, of which company Mr. Joel Hurt is the president.

"Men who work in comfort are better business men," announces the realty company.

"One-third of the average man's life is passed in his office."

"The business man whose office surroundings are pleasant, healthful and inspiring lives longer and produces more."

"Even more forcible is this truth applied to employees. The business man who provides his workers with the best of working conditions finds himself repaid many times by the snappy, happy, energetic efforts of his satisfied helpers."

"The Hurt Building, free from frail and useless ornamentation, contains the world's best and latest improvements for acquiring business efficiency."

have seen a line run through under harder conditions in quicker time.

Knowing these things about Joel Hurt brings the Hurt building in logical sequence. A man with the steel in his heart, mind and body to drive a railroad through a desert as a carpenter drives a nail through timber would naturally erect a steel house and select the correct material for its completion. Atlanta is ready for the Hurt Building, and, behold, it is ready to open.

Daughters of the American Revolution in Georgia

By Mrs. M. H. Graham.

In concluding the account of the Daughters of the American Revolution in Georgia, let us turn to the work of the organization in the state. It is due to her subject, as well as to the fact that she has been so long in the state, that the article is so long. It is due to the fact that the organization is so large and so active in the state, that it is impossible to do justice to it in a single article.

Was Bill Minor the Substitute?

It is believed by some of the confederate veterans of Washington county that the bill introduced in the Georgia legislature for the purpose of creating a new county in the state, was the substitute for the bill introduced in the Georgia legislature for the purpose of creating a new county in the state.

At the seventeenth annual meeting, at Cuthbert, on October 24-26, the following amendments to the constitution will be submitted:

The board recommends that the words "Parliamentarian, life directors and director of federation model schools" be added to Article II, following "and president of the club."

General Federation Meets.

CROWNING GLORY OF HURT'S WORK

Building Is Tribute to His Genius and to Those Firms
With Which He Did Business.

The Hurt building, at Edgewood avenue and Exchange place, the crowning glory of all Joel Hurt's structural achievements, will open its doors about October 1. The exterior and a great part of the interior of this magnificent building have been completed, and workmen are busy day and night now to put the finishing touches on the uncompleted parts of the interior.

It is so nearly completed today that many firms which have leased office space in the building have already moved in, and are doing business there.

The new Hurt building will be, architecturally, one of the most beautiful office buildings in the southern states.

Rising in its white splendor from the foot of a magnificent vista down Edgewood avenue from Five Points, it compels the admiring gaze of all the thousands who hourly pass that busy center of the city. It is one of the few large buildings in the city which afford sufficient perspective for one in looking upon it to appreciate the fulness of its grace and grandeur.

Tasteful Simplicity.

A tasteful simplicity in the pleasing and effective keynote of the architectural lines of the entire structure. Reflected only by the magnificent marble rotunda and colonnade at the entrance and a cornice of simple design at the top, its lines sweep unbrokenly from the pavement to the height of sixteen stories.

There is no elaborate filigree work or mammoth carved figures upon the building to tire the eye or make one weary of looking at it.

The whiteness of the building is relieved by colored tile panels, which lend to the whole a richness of tone that is most agreeable.

J. E. R. Carpenter, the New York architect who designed the building for Mr. Hurt, revealed his real genius in his conception of the entrance to the building. The beautiful rotunda, with its impressive marble columns and front of the building, shows a rare and subtle knowledge of a tasteful use of artistic architecture in the construction of a building for practical and commercial purposes.

M. H. Sugerman has been the architect in charge of the building.

The construction of the building is of the most substantial in its material and workmanship, and at the same time highly economical of space.

The structure was built by the Realty Construction company of Atlanta and Birmingham. R. V. Labarre is the construction company's representative who has had personal supervision of the actual construction of the building.

Latest Word in Construction.

It may be said the Realty Construction company and Mr. Labarre personally have accomplished a feat in point of the length of time it took to construct the building. No building of such proportions, thanks to the thorough organization of the force of its builders, has ever gone up in the city of Atlanta with such speed.

The building is known as a steel skeleton frame building, and is the latest word in steel construction. All the steel framework is encased in brick for protection from warping in case of fire. The brick casing, incidentally, bears its own weight and throws no additional weight upon the steel.

The floors are of hollow tile, placed after the method known among builders as "sand construction," which means that the tile blocks, which are about twelve inches thick, are placed end to end and thus held by the arch effect, produced the moment any weight is placed upon them. The joints are of reinforced concrete.

Arrangement of Elevators.

The elevators of the building are the most modern obtainable, and are conveniently arranged. The elevators are in the center of the building, and consist of two banks, one on either side of the foyer.

These elevators are so apportioned into express cars with various floors as destinations that a person can reach the top floor of the building almost as quickly as he can one of the lower floors.

The power of these elevators will be supplied by the Georgia Railway and Power company.

R. V. Doolittle will have supervision of the elevators and all the mechanical apparatus of the building.

Mr. Doolittle is a man of wide experience as an engineer. He has served in this capacity for a number of years in both the Equitable building, which is now the Trust Company of Georgia building, and the Candler building, and was for a long while superintendent of motive power for the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic railroad.

In the erection of this building Mr. Hurt has spared neither pains nor money to make it as nearly perfect and as serviceable as possible. As for how well he has succeeded, one has but to take a short trip through the building to learn that he has forgotten nothing.

It is a credit not only to Mr. Hurt, but, thanks to him, to the city.

JOEL HURT

PRACTICALLY HALF OF HURT BUILDING IS ALREADY LEASED

Practically half of the Hurt building has been leased, according to the statement of R. F. Martin, who is in charge of the renting and management of the building, and the doors have not yet been opened.

The demand continues good for offices in the new building. Concerns of every business nature are renting offices, each taking space of any size from a single room to an entire floor, which comprises 8,500 square feet of floor space.

It is believed that by the first of next year every office in the building will have been taken.

H. F. Martin and Joel Hurt, Jr., are managing the building. Their offices for the present are at 25 Exchange place, one of the store rooms in the Atlanta theater building.

MEANS BIG BUSINESS SAYS CHIEF BEAVERS

Of the Hurt building, Chief of Police James L. Beavers said:

"To the erection of this beautiful building Mr. Hurt has added to the city of Atlanta another glory. The building in its gleaming whiteness and graceful height is the epitome of a clean city. It also typifies business."

The erection of the Hurt building at Edgewood avenue and Exchange place, out of the beaten path, so to speak, is going to be a factor to be reckoned with in the future business district of Atlanta. By that statement I do not mean that the great Peachtree district is likely to leave growing at its present rate. Peachtree cannot accommodate all the business, and the Hurt building tells which way the winds of the future are blowing. "It gives me pride to be at the head of the police department of a city with such buildings as the Hurt building and of such enterprising and substantial citizens as its builder."

HURT BUILDING WILL BE ASSET FOR CITY, STATES THE MAYOR

"Such buildings as the new Hurt building are not only a grace and ornament to any city," says Mayor James G. Woodward, "but I believe, are great assets for any city to have."

"Not only does the Hurt building mean more business and wealth for the city, but it is of great value as an advertising medium. No man who comes to Atlanta and sees the handsome structure at Edgewood avenue but will go away with a good taste in his mouth and will have a good word for the town."

"The new Hurt building is of incalculable value to Edgewood avenue. That building will draw tradesmen and new buildings and a great deal of new business down that fine street, and I predict that in years to come the development started by the erection of this skyscraper will result in Edgewood avenue's being one of the biggest business streets in the city of Atlanta."

Hurt Building Roof Made By Interstate Roofing & Foundry Co.

The Promenade Tile Roof on the New Hurt Building is one of the largest of its kind in the South and was laid by Interstate Roofing & Foundry Co., Anniston, Ala.

This company also made and erected all the copper work and skylights on this building. In connection with their Roofing and Sheet Metal Contracting business they operate a Foundry and make structural and brass castings, light steel work, iron stairways, fire escapes, etc.

Psychological Society.

The Atlanta Psychological society meets Sunday night 7:30, in Cleveland Manning Hall, 10 N. Pryor street.

"Faith" is a deep thinker and a to attract and to hold his audience. Mrs. A. J. B. is the president of the series of lectures on "Breathless" Sunday, October 5. The public is invited to attend.

Atlanta Conservatory Notes.

A large attendance witnessed a demonstration of the lesser-Chipp music method for children, given by Miss Meta Marie Duke in the lecture room of the conservatory, Thursday afternoon. Patrons of the school and their friends lingered long after the demonstration to further examine the interesting paraphernalia and its ingenious application to the primal truths of a music education for the young.

Mr. C. Frederick Bonawit has arrived to take charge of the department of the drama and other stage direction. He is the proprietor of the performance of operas and dramas to be given by the students of the conservatory. Mr. Bonawit is a native of Europe and has been for six years in Europe with the best masters as a student, now having also concentrated extensively in Europe and America.

Signer Domenico Brosini is giving attention to students in preparation for oratorio and opera roles, as well as preliminary voice-building and correcting voice-placements. The more advanced pupils will soon be heard in concert.

A plain, almost a homely necessity; but elegance is infused into them in the quality of their material as we show them, and a mastery artianship which gives them their smartness.

Thus homely usefulness is the nucleus for works of art.

Since these early activities of Mr. Hurt business has gradually crept out Edgewood avenue, until today there are a large number of substantial business houses on the street. An excellent example of the sort of business which is moving towards the Edgewood avenue is the new building of Thomas McNair, a department store at Edgewood and Piedmont avenues.

The real business development of the street, however, is scarcely yet begun. The completion of the opening of the Hurt building a new era is predicted for Edgewood avenue.

This new building, incidentally, is but only the beginning of a series of handsome improvements which Mr. Hurt has planned for this immediate section.

However the winds of business may blow, one thing is certain, and that is that Mr. Hurt must be reckoned with in the development of the city of Atlanta.

Conscience and Vaccination.

To any one to whom figures mean anything or who is willing to accept the absolutely undoubted results of experience, vaccination as a preventive of small-pox is an established fact. If the good of the whole people is to be regarded as a principle of disease prevention as it is in other matters of government, then vaccination should be universally compulsory. That is the position on the good, the sense and good judgment of enlightened people. In such a well-governed country as Great Britain, where vaccination may almost be said to have

Four years ago the Otis Elevator company maintained in Atlanta only a local agency. Soon after Mr. Hoffman took over as office manager in the control of the states of Georgia, South Carolina and Florida. In a few years the company's business increased fivefold and last August Alabama, Tennessee were added to the Atlanta territory. Most of the increase of business indicated by the Otis expansion has been in Georgia, a very large portion of it in Atlanta. The Otis offices here are now maintained as a complete executive and administrative department for the southern states.—(adv.)

The annual all-day meeting of the Jubilee Union of Mission Workers will be held Tuesday, September 24, at 10 o'clock, at St. Mark's Methodist church, corner Peachtree and Fifth streets.

The exercises promise to be very interesting and instructive. The morning will be devoted to local work and the afternoon to the mission study class and interests in China.

Cox College Notes.

The first days of organization and establishment of Cox college are over, and work has begun in real earnest.

The conservatory is emphasizing the chorus feature this year and under the management of the new director, Frederick R. Smith, who has just arrived from New York, many new choruses will be organized and rendered by this large chorus.

Another feature of the college is the musical management of Miss Katherine Dullens, who is becoming a most popular course.

Even games of tennis and basketball are being enjoyed by the students. Miss Louise Collier, the director, is making these features very popular.

Miss Norwood Key, who has spent several months in Europe, has returned to her work.

The conservatory is enjoying attending services at the various churches in the city.

On October 14, 15, and 16, the Atlanta Baptist association will be entertained by Cox college and College Park Baptist church. Special music will be rendered by the students and faculty of the college.

To Miss Collier.

Miss Louise Collier gave a pretty luncheon yesterday at her home on West Peachtree street, in compliment to Miss Louise Collier, at whose wedding she will be maid of honor.

The party of eight included a group of Miss Collier's close friends.

The house had attractive decorations in gold and red, and the luncheon table centerpiece, a bright picture in yellow, had its centerpiece of golden.

HURT ROOF LAID BY INTERSTATE CO.

Anniston, Ala., Firm, Grown
From Small Beginning to Prominence All Over
South, Completes Contract.

The business of the Interstate Roofing and Foundry company, of Anniston, Ala., who laid the roof of the Hurt building, was established in 1899 in Anniston, Ala., by G. O. Britton, its present president and general manager. The business soon grew beyond the bounds of Anniston and of Alabama and spread over the entire south, from Virginia to Texas and from the Ohio to the Gulf. Among the larger contracts executed by this company are the following: Louisville and Nashville passenger stations at Montgomery and Selma, Ala., and those at Boyles, Ala.; freight warehouses at Brunswick, Ga., and Pensacola, Fla.; hospitals at Durham, N. C.; Nashville, Tenn.; Birmingham and Montgomery, Ala.; state buildings at Athens, Ga.; Bolivar, Tenn.; and Tuscaloosa, Ala.; government buildings at Columbia and Dublin, Ga.; Orangeburg, S. C.; Florence and Gadsden, Ala.; courthouses at Jacksonville and Bartow, Fla.; Camden, S. C.; Jackson and Greenwood, Miss.; Ruston and St.

Francisville, La.; hotels at Jacksonville, Fla.; Birmingham and Mobile, Ala.; manufacturing plants for American Steel and Wire company, Fairfield (Birmingham), Ala.; Birmingham Railway Light and Power company, Birmingham, Ala.; Owensboro Wagon company, Owensboro, Ky.; Knoxville Iron Works, Knoxville, Tenn., and hundreds of other mills, factories, churches, schools and other public and private buildings scattered throughout the southern states.

Five years ago a foundry and machine shop was added to the company's other lines and they now make structural castings, brass castings, iron stairways and fire escapes and a line of hardware specialties, such as G. O. washers, shoe lasts, and more, and which they sell to the jobbing trade only.

Of special interest to mill owners and general contractors is the automatic sash operating device they are making for working long lines of Monitor and other overhead sash at one operation. They have recently equipped a number of mills with these devices in North and South Carolina, Georgia and Alabama.

Special attention is also given to the manufacture of "interstate" ventilators for the ventilation of public and private buildings, mills and factories. A solid carload of these was recently shipped to Rosemary Manufacturing company, Rossmore Junction, N. C., for their new Damask plant; that place. This ventilator was patented ten years ago and has been extensively used throughout the south.

LIGHTING FIXTURES THOROUGHLY MODERN

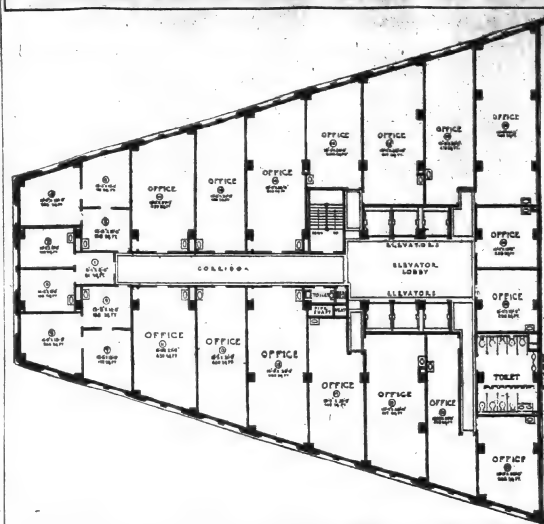

Were Placed in Hurt Building
by the W. E. Carter Electric Company.

The modern lighting fixtures in the Hurt building were placed by the W. E. Carter Electric company of Atlanta.

This company, under the active management of L. L. Shivers, vice president and general manager, has grown in five years to be one of the leading enterprises in artistic lighting effects for business buildings, churches, residences and public gathering places in the south.

At 13 Walton street Mr. Shivers has installed one of the most beautiful show rooms for ornamental lighting effects this side of New York. Some exclusive designs in silver chandeliers, topeas domes and hammered brass and silver hangings are displayed. The company as at present organized has officers as follows: E. D. Kennedy, president; L. L. Shivers, vice president; C. O. Peasall, secretary and treasurer, and P. C. Gilman, sales manager.

HURT BUILDING OFFICE FLOOR PLAN

NINETY TYPEWRITERS SOLD BY REMINGTON TO ATLANTA SCHOOLS

Ninety typewriters have just been delivered to the High schools of Atlanta by the Remington Typewriter company, making the largest single order for typewriters ever placed in the south. The order was taken and executed by C. A. Beauchamp, manager of the Remington company's local branch, assisted by J. W. Wilson, C. C. Greene and J. H. Ferrell, salesmen. The typewriters were delivered Thursday on a motor truck which also carried a band dispersing music throughout the business district. The truck bore a sign announcing that "Ninety Remington typewriters were being delivered to the schools of Atlanta." Much attention was attracted by the unusual parade. The largest previous sale of typewriters in the south was also made by Mr. Beauchamp's office when forty-nine of the latest improved Remington No. 10 machines were purchased by the Southern Shorthand and Business college.

80,000 SQUARE YARDS OF PLASTERING DONE

Eighty thousand square yards of plaster cover the interior of the Hurt building. Seventy men have been working four months mixing and spreading this enormous mass of lime and sand composition. This plaster weighs approximately 480 tons. It cost the owners of the building about $11,600. A young Birmingham contractor, R. A. McLeod, put in the plaster. So anxious is he to have each piece of work that he has stood as a permanent monument to his thoroughness that every batch of plastering mixed has his personal direction. He is so careful of his plaster mixing as a good housekeeper is of her bread and biscuit dough.

If a careless or unscrupulous contractor allows too much sand to get into the plaster the walls soften and scale off. That kind of a wall is cheap because sand is cheaper than the lime and cement. But the builder employs another plaster contractor on the next job.

Mr. McLeod is just completing a plastering contract for the Lyric theater in Birmingham.

The Perfect Safety Scaffolding Company, of New York city, who rented the Scaffold Hangers to the Realty Construction Company, the contractors for the Hurt building, are one of the largest operators in builders' scaffolding and appliances in the United States. They are the sole owners and patentees of the aforementioned Scaffold Hangers, which are considered the most simple, economical and reliable machines of their kind on the market at the present day. They have other scaffolding and appliances equally modern and up-to-date for construction work on skyscrapers similar to the Hurt building, which greatly cut down the cost and materially expedite the work on the building and furnish absolute safety to workmen.

McLeod Puts 80,000 Yards of Plaster in the Hurt Building

Throughout the whole structure the Hurt Building is made of the best material. The highest grade of workmanship has been exacted.

The plastering contract, which I handled, entailed an expenditure of approximately $33,000. The workmanship has been careful and conscientious. Attention to detail has been my watchword. I believe that the plastering of the Hurt Building will stand uncracked until knocked off with a pick.

Throughout I have used exclusively Ivory Hard Wall Plaster. In mixing I have given my personal direction to the batches to guard against an excess of sand. Too much sand softens the plaster and in a short time it scales off. I ask every builder, architect or property owner to inspect the plastering in the Hurt Building and send for me to figure on their contracts.

The Hurt Building plastering contract is typical of my work since I have been in business. I am just completing the plaster contract for the new Lyric Theater in Birmingham. Look at that when in Birmingham and then call on me or write.

Hurt Building

For Offices

- ¶ A business man spends one-third of his time in his office.
- ¶ The Hurt Building affords all the requirements for a business office.
- ¶ The business man whose office surroundings are pleasant, healthful and inspiring lives longer and produces more.
- ¶ Even more forcible is this truth applied to employees. The business man who provides his workers with the best of working conditions finds himself repaid many times by the snappy, happy, energetic efforts of his salaried helpers.
- ¶ Safety, convenience and comfort are found in the Hurt Building.
- ¶ Small offices for individuals, large suites for business institutions.
- ¶ Every room in the building is open to a free sweep of air and sunshine. The Van Auken heating system, equipped with Johnson Thermostatic Heat Regulation, keeps the temperature desired. An even temperature keeps the human system in healthy tone.
- ¶ Floors noiseless and sanitary. All corridor floors are marble. All office floors are marble terraza. These floors are sanitary and cleanly. They are absolutely proof against mice, vermin and germs.
- ¶ The building is fireproof. The elevators, corridors, staircases and floors are of non-combustible material. Each floor is a structure unto itself, separated from every other floor for safety. Ingress and egress easy and safe.
- ¶ The Hurt Building supplies offices of any size from 235 feet in one office to 10,000 feet or a whole floor.
- ¶ The Hurt Building is in the center of the city.

THE LAMPshade
GOWN.

THE COAT-DESS
WHICH IS BOUND TO BE POPULAR.

"CURIOUSER and curiousest," as Alice said, are the gowns that are being sent from Paris, the great fashion center, to the devotees of style over the water. Though eccentric, the lampshade gown is rather artistic, and will be found exceedingly becoming to the slim little debutante. The tunic is of plaited chiffon, and is wired stiffly to give the proper lampshade effect. The startling effect of the black and white combination shown on the left is quite French. The tango gown, two views of which are shown, recalls the quaint costumes of a bygone age when beaux and belles excelled in the minuet. The windmill hat, as it is called in Paris, is developed in the popular black velvet, and is simply adorned with the flaring bows which give it its name. Perhaps the most practical of the illustrations is the little coat dress, which will be much worn this season. It combines the features of both coat and gown, and is in reality a one-piece dress.

FASHIONS FOR EARLY AUTUMN

THE stoles and muffs of the coming season are no larger than coats seem unnecessary except in cold weather.

The set of white fox shown on the figure on the left has the stole extending below the waist in the back, while the muff reaches to the elbow. They are worn with a frock of dark blue silk, having the blouse and tunic of colored crepe chiffon. The tunic is in wide scallops as is also the yoke of blue silk.

The afternoon gown of black tulle is deeply girdled with soft silk in olive green, which ties in a large Alsatian bow fringed and enlaid with a beaded ornament. The prevalence of collarless frocks has rendered the co-train bon again popular. Here it is open fitting the neck snugly and tied in the back with ribbon. The little girl's coat is of tan corded silk, with an unusually cut collar of black silk. The wide belt and cuffs are outlined with black.

KICKING

Tech's Style of Attack Will Be Based Around Their Booting Strength

BY DICK JENSON.
To propel an inflated ball forward by a motion of the foot. To the uninitiated and Websterian scholars this defines the word football.

In its inception the sport football was primarily intended to be governed by the above definition. It has branched out since in a larger and broader scope, other variety of play being incorporated, but it still retains its original name—football.

Briefly, the entire plan of attack of the 1913 Georgia Tech football team is to kick. Any one not well versed in the game would, at a casual glance, come to the conclusion that as the primary, the first rudiments of the game was to kick, that the local eleven was retrograding.

But let us specialists. By no doing we will in this story, which purports to be an "inside" treatise on the Tech team, keep pace with what the Jacks are will do all season—special.

Good Punter an Asset.
A good punter is a valuable asset on any football team. A good goal kicker is more so. A player who can register field goals consistently is a source of strength no coach can afford to overlook—of worry to all opponents.

Jim Thorpe's prowess as a goal kicker made the Carolina Indians at least 10 per cent stronger last season. Princeton's mighty punter was an immense help to Harvard. Pennsylvania's accuracy in booting saved Jim in her game with Princeton, and other innumerable instances might be mentioned.

The entire attack of the Tech Yellow Jackets in the coming season has been completely changed by the possession of not only reliable, but accurate kickers in her back field.

The line-plunging, end-running, forward passing and trick-formation game will not be taboos by reason of this added ground-gaining feature.

The strength in the kicking department will permit of more and better plays, a great variety of formations and a more varied attack that will bewilder all opposition.

By adding all branches of successful kicking to their arsenal of play, the Yellow Jackets' chances for a successful season have been increased immensely.

Not since the days of "Old Brown" have the Yellow Jackets possessed a consistently reliable kicker and punter. Last season had many good players, but no one was ever named a goal-kicking attack or relied on in the back field, owing to the absence of a dependable field goal kicker.

There is a marked difference between a good punter and a good goal kicker. Of the latter, there are two classes. One is the drop kicker and the other the placement kicker. When a team is possessed of a good punter, a good place kicker and a good drop kicker, even the uninitiated can see at a glance that the team possesses the same has acquired an added strength not to be disparaged, but rather esteemed to.

Tech Will Kick.
Which brings us back to where we started. The Tech football team of 1913—will KICK.

Since Brown's days as related above Tech has never had a man on whom she could rely to boot the ball between the goal posts and run up the score. In a tight game, a field goal might turn the tide of battle.

Take, for example, the Tech football team of 1912. For its weight—the average was but 155 pounds—it was a good football team as there was in the south. But this lack of weight prevented it from smashing the ball across to a touchdown, that a heavier team might have been more successful at, and proved so against them.

Here, where the field goal kicker would have come in.

Which leads us to the main point at issue.

The Tech football team of 1913 possesses what the Tech football team of 1912—will KICK.

It possesses four players who can kick—two good, reliable goal kickers, one can place-kick with accuracy and one can drop-kick.

One can place-kick with accuracy and one can drop-kick.

See the point? The Tech team is playing Georgia. On the first down, the Jackets are held. The ball is on the four yard line.

Instead of kicking either an end run, with the exception of being more successful, or of punting, and thus give the opposition the ball, the Tech team will kick for a goal from field, take it and make the point.

It is not going to be all that, the Jackets are going to play a prominent part. It is not going to be all that, the Jackets are going to play a prominent part.

But with Press and Refsnyder also able to punt and the rule permitting the punting at a place behind the line of scrimmage, without any set yardage condition, the opposition will never know which man is going to punt and all three are effective punters.

Press, Patten and Captain Cook can all throw forward passes an equal distance and with equal accuracy. Score another point for the Jackets and lay the foundation of all opponents.

Attack Around Kicking.
Yes, the attack of the Tech football team of 1913 is going to be based around the wonderful kicking ability in the backfield, but while the kicking is going to play a prominent part, it is not going to be all that, the Jackets are going to play a prominent part.

And foremost, the team has increased weight and speed over the 1912 eleven. The average of 171 and 172 pounds per man against 155 last year.

The Jackets of 1913 were not so fast as one would look for them to be with their light weight.

The heavier team this year is considerably faster, though a bit newer to the game.

Again you can see the possibilities. Here is a team, weighing twelve or thirteen pounds to the man heavier than the one of last year, with more speed and the kicking power than the former year's team lacked. Truly, Tech supporters are right in being jubilant over their prospects.

The Tech backfield for the season has been decided upon. Captain Cook will play left half, where he starred last season. On him little comment is necessary, he has the O. K. stamp from the coach, the ardent body and the fans.

Last week at Grant field, the Jackets played a sensational game with one of the best teams in the south, and he is likely to do at any time, is going to be at the side of every team the Jackets play to win.

He is a good punter in the bargain, getting off long high punts, the kind that gives his ends plenty of time to get down the field and nail the runner.

In fieldstick, a younger brother of the former navy star, the Jackets have not kicked who is said to be as effective in registering drop kicks as Press, but he is absolutely accurate.

True, he does not get quite as much distance, but he is absolutely accurate, which leads to the complications that will arise when the Jackets are, at any particular point in the enemy's territory.

Ref'snyder is also said to be a reliable punter. More trouble for the opposition.

Alf McDonald, who did the punting last season, will probably handle this feature of the Jackets' play again this year.

But with Press and Refsnyder also able to punt and the rule permitting the punting at a place behind the line of scrimmage, without any set yardage condition, the opposition will never know which man is going to punt and all three are effective punters.

GEORGIA BOY SHOWS CLASS IN PITCHING

Manfield, Ga., September 21.—(Special.)—Sherrod M. Smith, the local baseball star, was the first of the Georgia boys to show class in pitching.

With Grand Rapids in the Central league, his work was the sensation of the season. He won nine games and lost two, besides batting over .300.

In his three seasons, young Smith has won fifty-one games and lost twenty-seven, a grand record of .650.

He was expected to play ball on the local level, and his rise in the ranks of the profession has been rapid.

They are better, the captain and tackle of the Chattanooga high school team, the former McCallie star, and other promising end men. They are showing up equally as well.

In addition to the splendid list of candidates mentioned above, there are five players who would make the varsity without much effort, but who are now playing on the scrub, being injured by the "flu" in the last year.

ENROLLMENT ENROLLMENT SAME AS LAST YEAR

241 Students at Methodist Institution at Oxford—Class Officers Named.

Emory College, Oxford, Ga., September 27.—Special. The enrollment of Emory college for the first week, as posted by President Dickey on the bulletin board in the lobby of Emory hall is 241. This according to Professor M. V. West, secretary of the faculty, is exactly the same number enrolled last season the first week. It was thought on opening day that the present enrollment would go beyond what it was last season at the first of the year. This was due to the large number of new faces in the crowd, the present freshman class being somewhat larger than the freshman class of last year.

The Junior class has just completed its election of officers. George W. Matthews, Jr., of Fitzgerald, was elected president for the second year. The popularity of George Matthews is evidenced by the fact that he was one of the sophomore class and has been chosen president of the Junior class and, according to custom, that he will also be the president of the senior class. The other Junior officers are as follows: Secretary, Charles C. Williams, of Savannah; Treasurer, Charles C. Williams, of Savannah; Historian, Irvin Smith, of Atlanta; Post, H. R. Hudson, of East Point; Proprietor, A. H. Howell, of Savannah; Chaplain, J. H. Hudson, of Savannah; Football manager.

ONE THOUSAND SINGERS WILL GATHER IN ROME

Seventh District Singing Society Meets in Annual Convention October 18 and 19.

Rome, Ga., September 27.—(Special.) One thousand singers from the mountains and the coast of Georgia will gather in the seventh congressional district for the annual convention of the Seventh District Singing Society, of which John P. Davis, of Rome, is president. The convention will be held at the Hotel Rome, October 18 and 19. The singing societies of the district will be singing from the book "The Song of the Mountains" without instrumental accompaniment, and the violin, although these innovations are not viewed with favor by the majority of the singers, who claim that the music is the voice alone and not for any instrumental accompaniment. The singing societies have always flourished in north Georgia and are of as much interest to the people as to the school. Each year, every county in the seventh district has a county singing society. All of these will unite in sending delegates to Rome next month. The visitors will be entertained in the homes of Rome and the sessions of the society will be held in one of the local churches.

Emperor William's Library.

(From The Westminster Gazette.) It has been announced that the private library of Kaiser Wilhelm will form one of the principal exhibits at the exhibition of the trade union to be held in Leipzig next year, and that the library will be conveyed there in entirety for exhibition to curious visitors. The announcement has caused considerable excitement among German amateurs. But The Kaiser's library, in giving interesting particulars of the Kaiser's private library, which is that it is much smaller than is generally supposed. It is estimated that it contains 6,000 volumes, and two-thirds of the total number have been acquired during the twenty-five years of the German emperor's reign. When Kaiser Wilhelm succeeded the throne he inherited a private library of a mere 2,000 volumes. Characteristically he commenced by eliminating nearly one-half of them as being books of no present practical value.

The catalog of the emperor's private books is divided into twelve carefully arranged categories. The first consists of encyclopedias and dictionaries, the second of books on jurisprudence, the third, political economy and social sciences; the fourth, colonial; the fifth, archaeology and numismatics; the sixth, universal history; the seventh, history of the Hohenzollerns; the eighth, biographies, memoirs, personal recollections and correspondence; the ninth, military science; the tenth, geography and ethnography. While the last two divisions are devoted to German literature and pictures. Each volume contains a book plate designed by the German artist, Ernst Doppelner, with the emperor's initials. The library is not a collector of book plates. His brother, Prince Henry, possesses one of the finest collections in all Germany.

AUBURN VARSITY ASSUMING SHAPE

Donahue's Lads Are Rapidly
Rounding Into Good Form.
The Defense Is Showing
Strength in Scrimmage.

Asbury, Ala. September 27.—(Special.)—The practice game was held Friday on Drake field between the varsity and the scrubs. The playing was rather slow as the change in the temperature seemed to effect the players. The varsity scored once in the first period and again by Newall and Arnold and line backs. Fough scored two more touchdowns were made in the last period in which the line plunging of Bedes was very prominent. Against the varsity defense the scrubs scored no impression and failed to make a first down. Fough scored gains were made by Dupray and Thurman.

The work, so far, has been nearly altogether on individuals and as a result the team as a whole is beginning to take shape.

Pitts will very likely be found at the center position of his teammate passing and aggressive nature. He also has sufficient weight.

At the guards will be found the big men of the squad, Lockwood and Tignor. Lockwood is a power forward, over two hundred but they have considerable flesh that they can get along very well without. They need plenty of hard work.

Louell has been off the field because of a hot, but is out again and will be used at right tackle. Though not very big he is a good player and is the best punter on the squad.

Culpepper and Steed are two other possibilities for this use.

There are several promising candidates for the other tackle and if he does not go his present form and condition will be a disappointment. In the recent years, who was one of the best players in the state.

Poor health and injuries kept him out of it last year but now he is in good health and much heavier.

The Made.

Robinson and Wynne are the present ends. Robinson is already known in southern football and Wynne promises to be. He was a scrab last year but is now playing a game not much below Robinson's.

Another good man is Hairston from Marion. He is new at end but is natural defensive player.

W. for $4,500—the highest sum ever paid for a player in that minor league claim. Doyle was a very young player, having seen but two years of professional service. He was born at Caseyville, Ill. July 21, 1887. He was a youth in the minor league at Caseyville, Ill., and a minor in Illinois for several years. In 1905 he started his professional baseball career with the Mattoon team of the Class B league. In 1906 he played with the Springfield club, of the I. L. C. league, and developed rapidly. In 1907 his work was the sensation of the league, his fielding being wonderful and his batting hand some. He got a total of a .315 clip all season. His work was so fine that a number of major league scouts tabbed him for major league acquisition. Many offers were made for Doyle's release, but the Springfield manager, McGraw, was determined to sell. Manager McGraw sent Dan Brothman, the veteran player, to watch Doyle at work. Brouthers was so impressed with the youngster's playing that

What Should Pretty Priscilla Do When Jealous John Is Miles Away?

CUPID, COQUETRY AND AN ENGAGED COUPLE

By Anna Dooly.

The pranks of Cupid make pleasant themes at this particular moment in the conversation of the bean monde returning from their summer outings. It would seem that Cupid had dealt directly in the odious romance this year, and that people have given much time and thought to many of the angles of what may be a part of the great game of life.

Heated arguments ensue as to whether or not John Alden was justified in repudiating his fiancée, the modern Priscilla. For her to even entertain the possibility of the attention of other men, on the other hand, was the result of certain engaged couples, and the question is raised as to whether it is wise for young people not yet married to hold themselves apart from the world at large.

Women, not engaged, distrust people generally as to the day they think should govern flirtations and men, who have bound no faith in a woman, are more eloquent in their disclosures on what should be the conduct of the woman who has promised herself in marriage to a man.

A question which seems to have been generally admitted is just what should be the conduct of the engaged couple when circumstances separate them.

Priscilla, endowed with all the coquetry which is her right of inheritance, has become engaged. The engagement came as a surprise to her from the report of parties which followed her return from the summer trip. But she was not to be deterred by the news, and she was to have a good time at the report, where, in the midst of the excitement, she began to cry out—

"If she went the young stranger, an awful man, who would be asked to make the party one of even number. Why should I accept? John would want her to have exercise and recreation, so she went."

There was a roll of the next day, in which she took part, and that night a collision, and why should she not dance? But what with the ride, the dance, the regular daily letter in the morning, so early the next morning, so as to get to the office in time, she did not go to bed until she was quite exhausted.

Priscilla, who had been so full of life, began to grow into one—that he needed rest. She loved him—how she loved to see him—how she loved to see him with her arms around him, and how she loved to see him with her arms around him.

When a remedy has lived for over thirty years, steadily growing in popularity and influence, and when such a vast number of women declare they owe their very lives to it, it is not reasonable to believe that it is an article of great merit? We challenge the world to show any other one remedy for a special class of disease which has attained such an enormous demand and maintained it for so many years as has

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

A Woman's Medicine for Woman's Ills.

It is an honest, tried and true remedy, of unquestionable curative value, made from Native Roots and Herbs. It contains no narcotics or harmful drugs, and complies with all conditions of the Pure Food and Drugs Law.

All sick women should note these facts, and placing all possible prejudices aside, should realize the truthfulness of these statements, and when assailed with any of the numerous illnesses peculiar to their sex, should at least give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial.

Aunt Sally's Advice to Beauty-Seekers

C. M. P.: The neck should receive similar attention to that given to the complexion, so color and texture of skin will be the same. A yellow face and a white face give a discordant effect. I advise using for the neck and complexion the treatment recommended in Macon.

F. M.: First, stop scowling. If you would get rid of the lines between the eyes. The best application for each line, and all wrinkles is a solution of powdered saffron in water. Washed in which water, in fact, the face in this daily until entirely relieved.

Monica: You hardly need such a lot of cosmetics as you mention. Ordinary merriment will help you more than any of the cosmetics. You will gradually become the withered, discolored complexion you mention. You will soon have a fine, youthful and healthy-looking skin. You need not put more than an ounce of the wax, which will cost you little at any drugstore. Apply nightly, like cold cream, washing it off mornings—Woman's Realm—(Ad.)

Wilkinson Then Buried Mutilated Body in Cornfield—He Confesses the Crime.

Logansport, Ind., September 27.—Clay Wilkinson, 34, who had been sought by the police since yesterday when the mutilated body of his wife was found buried on a farm where he had lived near here, was arrested here today. According to the police, he confessed he had killed his wife in the presence of their two sons.

Wilkinson was traced here through a letter written by his father. His two sons, aged 13 and 15, were with him. He was taken to Kokomo, Ind. The mutilated body of his wife was found buried in a cornfield near here yesterday. In the grave also were found a man's bloody shirt and a woman's bloody dress. The woman disappeared August 10, and at that time Wilkinson began advertising a public sale, which was held two weeks ago. He has not been seen since and his two sons also disappeared.

Wilkinson and his wife had been separated and on August 18 he sent for her to come home. She was with him and his son was sick. The boy was brought to the local hospital, but he has since recovered.

J. N. RENFROE MAKES CLEAR STATEMENT OF CANDIDACY

I am asking your support of my candidacy for Council from the First Ward and I want to tell you, in this public manner, how I shall stand upon matters of importance to our ward and to the city at large, if I am elected.

I shall continue to urge the widening of West Hunter Street; the widening, regrading and repairing of West Mitchell Street; the widening and improving of Walker and Nelson Streets; and the regrading of Whitehall Street.

The proposed viaducts from Alabama Street to Rhodes Street and from Spring Street to Terminal Station are of vital importance, not only to our ward, but to the entire city. I shall not only push this, but I will be one of our citizens of Atlanta to give $500 each in order to start this work. This will create a fund of $50,000. I believe the Street Car Company would give twice this amount, making $100,000, and I am sure the city would give the balance. I am ready to deposit a certified check right now.

I will also give $100 each to other citizens for the construction of a new, modern brick school on Davis Street, to take the place of the present fire-trap. This school has the finest park playground of any school in the city, and one of the smartest principals I ever saw. If elected, I shall work unceasingly to provide adequate school and park facilities for this and other wards.

Sale of Government Bonds To People Urged by Howard

In the house last week Congressman William S. Howard, of this Fifth Congressional district, produced a profound impression on his colleagues in his speech published in the Congressional Record when he proposed to refund the seven hundred and fifty million of two per cent government bonds now held by the National banks as a basis of circulation, by a sale of new bonds to the people.

He called attention to the fact that under the Glass-Steagall currency bill, the government instead of the present system, he suggested that when a coupon obligation or coupon bond of the government is issued, it should be sold to the people instead of being held by the National banks. He suggested that a government coupon obligation or coupon bond should be sold to the people instead of being held by the National banks. He suggested that a government coupon obligation or coupon bond should be sold to the people instead of being held by the National banks.

He also contended that no such change of bonds could accomplish the desired result, that the people would still have the control of the government, and the money of the government could never be removed into the hands of the National banks. He suggested that a government coupon obligation or coupon bond should be sold to the people instead of being held by the National banks.

Howard's speech was a masterpiece of logic and eloquence. He pointed out the many advantages of the proposed plan, and the many disadvantages of the present system. $2,500,000 TO NEW YORK FROM MORGAN ESTATE

And That Is Only Part of the Inheritance Tax the State Will Get.

Albany, N. Y., September 27.—State Comptroller Johnson today received a check for $2,500,000 in payment of the inheritance tax on a part of the estate of the late J. P. Morgan. The payment indicates a valuation of approximately $45,000,000. This, however, does not cover the entire estate, but only that part over which an agreement has been reached between representatives of the probate court and the Morgan estate.

Part of the celebrated Morgan estate is included in this valuation, as it is still undecided whether this will be turned over to New York city, if the city becomes the owner no tax will be required.

HARRISON WINS RACE TO MEET JAP EMPEROR
Tokio, September 27.—Francis Harrison, of New York, newly appointed governor general of the Philippines, won a hard race today to keep his appointment for an audience with the emperor of Japan.

The steamship Manchuria, on which Mr. and Mrs. Harrison sailed from San Francisco September 10, was delayed by fog. Mr. Harrison landed quickly, but Mrs. Harrison remained on board.

An express to Tokio and on arrival Mr. Harrison was met by the Japanese ambassador, George W. Guthrie, reaching there exactly at the appointed time.

Mr. Harrison's court broke all precedents in arranging to advance the audience. In the past, the audience was held at the Japanese embassy in Washington, D. C., and the Japanese ambassador would come to the White House.

Mr. Harrison's audience with the emperor is regarded here as of great political significance, as a demonstration of Japan's good will and friendship toward the United States.

Mr. Howard claims that the labor and cost of operating the Postal Savings system can be reduced fully one-third by the use of the proposed plan.

Mr. Howard has introduced a new Postal Savings act embodying his ideas. The new act would reduce the interest rate on the present system from four per cent to three per cent.

X-SCIENCE DEVOTEE KILLED IN HER OFFICE

Los Angeles, September 27.—The body of Mrs. Rebecca P. Gay, a religious devotee, was found in her office this morning, where she had been found today on the part of the body from the window which was on the fifth floor.

The police discovered a motive for the crime, which apparently was committed early last night. The body was covered with signs of religious fervor and the woman's money was in her purse.

Mrs. Gay was the devoted wife of John G. Gay, a wealthy resident of San Diego, who had been married to her for many years. She was a Christian Science devotee and was said to be a member of the Christian Science church.

A bloodstained collar found on a root directly beneath the open window of Mrs. Gay was the most pronounced clue to the crime. The police discovered a motive for the crime, which apparently was committed early last night.

LURED TO LONELY SPOT AND SHOT TO DEATH

Mrs. Mildred Allison, Dancing Teacher, of Chicago, Murdered by Unknown Man.

Chicago, September 27.—(Special.)—A woman, dressed in a fashionable manner, was found dead on the tracks of the Elgin, Joliet and Eastern railroad near Wayne, a suburb last night, disclosed today that the woman had been shot, the bullet entering the jaw and lodging in the brain.

Search in the vicinity of where the body was found failed to disclose a weapon, which fact forced the police to the conclusion that the woman was lured to the place and murdered.

Important evidence was given to the coroner by Mrs. Frank Pratt, of Wayne. Mrs. Pratt observed the woman, accompanied by a man when they alighted from a train at Wayne and followed them a short distance and saw them separate. Mrs. Pratt continued home and when she reached her door heard what sounded like a pistol shot.

In the opinion of the police the woman after being shot was carried to the truck and placed on the rails to destroy evidence of the crime.

Fifteen feet from the body scraps of what had been an eight page letter written in lead pencil on the stationery of the Congress hotel, Chicago, were found.

A bracelet worn by the woman was inscribed "From W. H. A. to M. A. 1-8-13." The woman was well dressed and this description was given by the sheriff.

"Aged 35 to 40, 140 pounds; nails well manicured; long auburn hair. Wore dark blue serge suit, large hat trimmed with pink rose and bow and black ostrich plumes. Old rose petticoat and blue silk garters."

Frank Olson, proprietor of a "club" in Chicago, in a telephone conversation with Sheriff Kuhn expressed the fear that the dead woman was Mrs. Mildred Allison, a dancing teacher employed by him. Last Thursday night Olson said that Mrs. Allison during a telephone conversation had alluded to some one.

"I'll give you till Thursday night; then something will happen."

Identification of the body apparently was completed when the woman's purse was found on a card on which was engraved "Mildred Allison, Dancing Teacher in pencil Olson's name and address had been written.

ROBBERS SECURE COIN FROM MINT AT FRISCO

It Will Take Dollar for Dollar Count of $61,000,000 to Learn the Extent of the Loss.

Washington, September 27.—The United States mint at San Francisco has been robbed, although it is believed the amount is small. Treasury officials today confirmed reports of a robbery from the coinage plant on the Pacific coast. It will require a dollar for dollar count of the $61,000,000 of silver stored there to discover the exact loss.

Only $7 have been found to be missing up to late time, but the circumstances indicate that the sum will be increased. George B. Roberts, director of the mint, today said undoubtedly that there had been a scheme of "petty pilfering," but he was confident no great amount had been stolen. The director added, was from the great stock of silver dollars stored in bags containing $1,000 each. In a few of these bags had been taken and iron weights substituted.

The count of coin at San Francisco now in progress was undertaken to verify the accounts upon the assumption of the superintendent of the mint by T. W. H. Shashah, recently appointed to succeed Frank Leach.

INSURANCE MONEY USED FOR POLITICS

Nashville, Tenn., September 27.—The report of the special legislative committee appointed to investigate the state fire marshal's office was made public here.

The following criticism is made by the committee:

"Four committee is forced to the conclusion that the money which insurance companies are paying into the state for the protection of their interests and the money which owners of property in this state are entitled to have expended in a way that will safeguard their property against fire."

The report sets out that eight representatives and one senator have received various sums from the state for services rendered to the state insurance department.

NEGROES RECOGNIZED BY ATTACKED HERMIT

Waycross, Ga., September 27.—(Special.)—James Bennett, the aged hermit who is in a local hospital as a result of an attack made on him at his home near Naylor, stated today that the negroes held by Sheriff Lee of Homer county are members of the gang that he was hanging around his place when he was attacked and his home burned. He is setting along as well as could be expected. Physicians say he will recover.

It is now thought that more than one negro was actually concerned in the robbery, and officers hope to get all who had anything to do with it. It is not believed that the men involved in the Bennett case had anything to do with the mysterious robbery and murder of Mack Spain, an aged eccentric farmer found dead near Mexico.

FACTION IN GORDON TO FIGHT ROAD TAX

Calhoun, Ga., September 27.—(Special.)—A small minority of citizens of Gordon county have come forward to oppose the special tax levied by the road commissioners, acting under the recommendation of the last grand jury, for the building of the proposed Jonesboro-Spartanburg highway from Chattanooga to Atlanta.

These citizens, under the leadership of W. F. Dickey, of Sugar Valley, have appointed Attorneys Hutchins and Robinson, of Rome, and the latter are preparing to unjoin the county from collecting the special tax. This tax is $4.00 on the thousand. The sentiment of the majority of the citizens is overwhelmingly in favor of the new highway, and prominent citizens state that they will fight successfully any move of the opposition to block the raising of the needed funds.
